applicant designated for hearing in this proceeding, Street Stryder, and he has not sought a similar continuance.

3. The Bureau submits that a suspension of procedural dates is of no value in the instant proceeding. It is our view that Devine cannot avail itself of distress sale relief unless Street Stryder does likewise. In Policy Statement, the Commission observed that the avoidance of hearings, and the expenditure of time and resources involved in them, would offset the loss in ~~poten~~erent value which would result from allowing distress sales required<sup>2</sup>. For another thing, since only one applicant is requesting the continuance, the proceeding would have to be bifurcated and Street Stryder would apparently proceed to hearing on the existing schedule. This would be extremely and unnecessarily wasteful of administrative resources.

5. For the reasons set forth in the foregoing comments, the Bureau opposes Devine's Motion for Continuance of Procedural
